

A Cock & a Bull

Sung by M^{rs} Brand

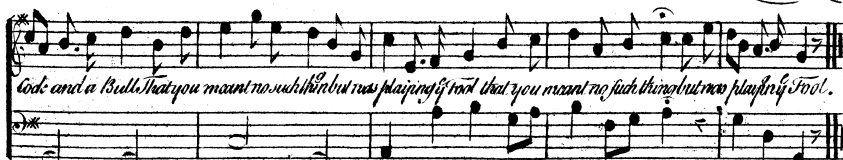

To take in good part 't'is queer 't'is said the language of lovers who dare not demand

& then with another as dour 't'is said you've met him believe his happiness near you: 't'is hard to dare his happiness near then to tell him then to tell him then to tell him then to tell him that of a

Cock and a Bull. That you meant no such thing but was playing 't'is said that you meant no such thing but was playing 't'is said.

The road on the Toe to admit & be Free,
 And straight to reply with the Toe Reparter,
 To express with your Eyes your inward Desires,
 And thus with full hopes to kindle his Fires. Then to tell him
 When he wants to disclose what he dare not reveal,
 When he looks very silly and means a great deal,
 When he thinks of ever thinking should enter his Brain,
 You'll now grant his wish the Ease of his Pain. Then to tell him
 Told him involuntur'd proceed on to Bliss,
 To suffer the Snatch or the Theft of a Kiss,
 When Conjectures retreating unwillingly flies,
 When Signs answers murmurs & Eyes talk to Eyes. Then to tell him
